

November

The comments in this summary relate to Target Corporation sales for the four week and year-to-date periods ended November 25, 2006 compared to the four-week and year-to-date periods ended November 26, 2005. These sales results are included in the table of our sales release issued on November 30, 2006.

Comparable store sales in November increased 5.9 percent, driven by growth in both average ticket and traffic, with average transaction amount being a slightly greater contributor than traffic. Comparable store sales in the same period a year ago grew 2.6 percent.

The current month sales release quotes Bob Ulrich, chairman and CEO of Target Corporation, as saying, "Our November comparable store sales growth was in line with our expectations."

The merchandise categories with the strongest comparable store sales growth during the month included: electronics, healthcare, consumables/perishables and newborn/infant/toddler. The categories with the weakest sales performance for the month were jewelry & accessories, shoes and intimate/hosiery.

Target's strongest markets during November were along the West coast with the Midwest, South and East coast also delivering solid performance during the month.

At month-end, our inventory was in very good condition.

Looking forward, our plan for December 2006 reflects an increase in comparable store sales in the range of 3.5 to 5.5 percent. For perspective, comparable store sales in December 2005 increased 4.7 percent.
